

After retiring in 2015 and moving from California to be with family, Scott is currently doing consulting as The Restaurant Wizard in the greater Wilmington area. A Harvard MBA in Finance and Strategic Planning, Scott has had 35 years of experience in the restaurant industry at the Director of Planning level or above. He has been a classical music fan since his Uncle introduced him to classical music records as a teenager. While living in Boston, Manhattan and Los Angeles over the years he and his wife have experienced wonderful music at wonderful venues, but they have been impressed and excited to find the quality and variety of music available in this community. Being 15 minutes from almost anywhere, versus hours of commuting round trip to events in the major metropolitan areas, they have been getting to one or two music events per month versus four or five per year. When you throw in all of the other types of entertainment this is almost heaven.
