

Jack has served on several local non profit boards, including Head Start and the United Jewish Appeal of Wilmington, often as Treasurer. He is a UNCW Emeritus Professor of Chemistry having taught there from January 1968 to June 2006. In addition to teaching, he led student research, served on numerous university/faculty committees, and was chair of the Department of Chemistry 1975-1992. His interest in music goes back to early childhood, and he has played trumpet for over sixty years. During high school, he played in the Savannah Symphony Orchestra, a professional orchestra. Currently, he plays in the New Horizons Band at UNCW and he along with his wife love Chamber Music Wilmington and the exceptional quality of the performances it brings into the community.
